AT THE
UNIVERSITY OF MICHIGAN
ANN ARBOR

2020-2021

Throughout our history,

students from every corner of the globe have chosen to come to the University of Michigan for countless reasons. But one constant that has connected them all is the fact that, quite simply, Michigan is among the most respected universities in the world.

Ours is an experience characterized by quality. By community. By tradition. And by an atmosphere that truly embraces diversity and is shaped by the backgrounds and perspectives of students from around the world. Students like you.

That's why U-M President Mark Schlissel recently reaffirmed the university's commitment to protect the rights and opportunities available to all members of our academic community, and to do whatever is possible within the law to continue to identify, recruit, support, and retain international students.

With more than 97% returning for their sophomore year and 93% graduating within six years, our students are satisfied and thriving.

Research

research.umich.edu

Michigan is among the most respected research universities in the world, and much of that groundbreaking activity involves students. In fact, U-M is the #1 public university by total research and development expenditures, according to the National Science Foundation. The scope of the university's research programs is exceptional. Research is conducted within the 19 academic schools and colleges. Michigan is noted for its interdisciplinary research initiatives, such as nanoscience and technology, energy, and life sciences that involve faculty from many units on campus, including the Medical School, College of Engineering, and the College of Literature, Science, and the Arts.

The Undergraduate Research Opportunity Program (UROP) creates research partnerships between students and University of Michigan faculty and research scientists. All schools and colleges are active participants in UROP, providing a wealth of research topics from which a student can choose. More than 1,300 students and 800 faculty researchers are engaged in research partnerships.
